SECRETForm No. 45
1952 ~~January~~ 1958SECTION B (Continued)

given to the listing of duties and the rating given each duty because this section is an important basis for the evaluation of the employee for further assignments. If the job requires maintaining files, say what kind; if it requires preparing contributions to NIS chapters, say what chapters; if it requires interviewing job applicants, say what level or what kind of jobs; if it requires conducting investigations, tell what kind and for what purpose; if it requires liaison activities, tell what kind and with whom; if it requires analyzing reports or preparing reports, tell what kind, what subjects, and for what purpose.

Examples: "Operates 1250 multilith press" -- not "operates press."
 "Types research reports having many tables" -- not "types."
 "Serves as senior case officer for 7 important current operations using knowledge of [REDACTED] languages" -- not "senior case officer."
 "Supervises second-line supervisors who direct economic research" -- not "directs research."
 "Responsible for processing fiscal, financial, and budget reports for an operating branch of 50 people" -- not "financial support."

SECTION C EVALUATING OVERALL PERFORMANCE IN CURRENT POSITION

In making this rating the supervisor should take into account the employee's conduct on the job as well as his performance on all specific job duties. Each supervisor will weigh these factors in his own mind so as to arrive at a rating which will reflect an employee's value on the job. It is quite possible for an individual to be rated high on a number of specific duties and yet rated average or below on overall performance because his conduct on the job interferes with getting the work done. Conversely, a person with relatively low ratings on certain specific duties may be rated high on overall job performance because his conduct on the job facilitates the work of the office or because of other personal qualities that he brings to the job.

SECTION D DESCRIPTION OF THE EMPLOYEE

In this section the supervisor considers the employee from a succession of different angles and makes a number of close judgments about him. These judgments should be based on the characteristics demonstrated by the individual in his current position. The statements in this series apply in some degree to most people, but should be checked only when such ratings assist in the description of the individual. This section is a good test of the supervisor's ability to observe his subordinates.

SECTION E NARRATIVE DESCRIPTION OF MANNER OF JOB PERFORMANCE

In this section the supervisor describes the employee's demonstrated abilities or deficiencies in the performance of his present job. Any relatively high or very low ratings in SECTIONS B, C, and D should be justified by supporting statements. In addition, the supervisor may comment here on any extenuating circumstances which affect the productivity and effectiveness of the employee.
